ATLAS PEAK

Atlas Peak has been producing wines of renown since 1870. Located in Napa Valley's famed eastern mountains, Atlas Peak is regularly cooler than Napa Valley's other mountain AVAs, and significantly cooler than the valley floor. On a 100° F afternoon on the valley floor, Atlas Peak is typically 5° to 10° F cooler, ensuring abundant hangtime and ideal ripeness for our grapes. Atlas Peak also benefits from diurnal temperature variations of as much as 50° F, which helps the grapes to maintain natural acidity and minerality—signatures of our Acumen wines.

2022 VINTAGE

The 2022 growing season began with generous winter rains, followed by a cool, dry spring. The weather throughout summer was ideal with no days above 100° F until a significant Labor Day heat event. With strong canopies, plenty of water for irrigation, and cool, coastal climates, our vineyards were able to mitigate the heat and produced grapes of exceptional quality and concentration.
